USS Colorado Commissioning Delayed

We received word today that the Navy is no longer planning on a fall commissioning but rather is investigating March 17th, 2018 as the new target date for Commissioning. This was done to provide margin in event any construction issues arise during the upcoming sea trials, to provide more lead time for planning / contracting and also hopefully, to have better weather than the November time frame we were looking at. While this is disappointing news, it gives us even more time to plan a great celebration!

I will have a regular newsletter out in the near future.
